

Energy Shortage Outlook Bleak Despite Rumors

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer

President Nixon's reference to a possible end to the Arab oil embargo sparked a sharp rally on Wall Street, but no one is claiming that the energy crisis is over.

The market soared after the President dropped his hint at Friday's signing of the Alaska pipeline bill, and Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford said he had heard that "one or more Arab countries" were releasing oil.

The Dow Jones industrial average gained almost 17 points for the day.

But Ford later said it was only a false rumor, and Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton told reporters not to count on it before the end of the year. Morton also said that, unless there is a startling reduction in energy consumption by the end of next month, the nation will be "looking rationing in the face."

Meanwhile, the Senate continued to push toward expected passage of legislation giving the president power to order gasoline rationing, reduced speed limits, lowered thermostats and shorter school days.

A final vote on the bill by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., is scheduled for Monday, but it still must pass the House, which does not return from Thanksgiving recess until Nov. 26.

Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Tex., chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, quoted an Interior Department official as saying that starting Monday the administration would make scarce diesel fuel available on a priority basis for mass transit, farm operations and oil production.

The same official, Duke Ligon, director of the Interior Department's oil and gas division, also said that the price of gasoline could rocket to $1 a gallon next year if a stiff tax is imposed and price controls are removed.

But Senate Finance Committee Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., said he would not support a sharp hike in the gasoline tax, and the Senate voted down an amendment to the emergency energy bill that would have directed the President to take the lid off Phase 4 controls on the price of oil and gasoline.

Republican critics of the bill claimed it would only reduce demand without taking any steps to increase supply and argued that the only way to trigger badly needed domestic production is to remove price controls.

Kissinger Back Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and his one-man foreign policy roadshow is home today, facing the formidable task of taking a second step toward arranging a permanent Middle East settlement.

Kissinger, whose stamina was severely tested by a 12-day trip that covered 10 nations and 25,000 miles, planned to work at his White House office on the Israeli-Arab conflict and related problems.

State Department officials said the secretary's schedule was uncertain, but it included telephone calls with President Nixon at the Florida White House and conversations with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

Nixon had sent a message to Kissinger's plane Friday advising him to take a day off before reporting, but the secretary chose to keep working.

He went from the airport to his White House office and called Nixon. They talked for 15 minutes on what had been accomplished.

No details were available, but Kissinger gave a hint in a brief plane-side conversation with newsmen of what he told Nixon.

The trip, he said, "strengthened ties" between the United States and the areas he visited and "contributed to the stability of the cease-fire" in the Middle East.

Concerning his three days in China, the secretary said there was "further progress toward normalization of relations."

PICKAWAY County and central Ohio are apparently better off than other areas in the "energy crisis"

However, Columbia Gas has not been accepting new customers for quite some time and most suppliers of fuel oil are not accepting new customers. . . . Both South Central Power and Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric believe there will be no shortage of electrical power and both are accepting new customers and report an increase in electrical home heating systems. . . .

Most Papers Fight Shortage Of Newsprint

ORLANDA, Fla. (AP) — A shortage of newsprint has forced cuts in news content in more than 62 per cent of newspapers surveyed by the Associated Press Managing Editors Association, according to a report released today.

Of 470 newspapers responding to the survey released at the APME's annual convention, 295 said they had reduced their news content.

The 400 newsmen from the United States and Canada attending the five-day convention that opened Friday were to discuss the future of the newsprint shortage today following a speech by Florida Gov. Reubin Askew.

The first victim of the newsprint shortage, the survey showed, was syndicated features, followed by international and national news, photographs, comics and sports. Local news was the last thing cut, the survey said.

Outbreak Brings Martial Law

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek government called out army troops and placed the country under martial law today after bloody clashes between students and police left four persons dead and hundreds injured.

The move came only hours after army troops and police smashed their way into the Athens Polytechnic Institute to put down the remnants of thousands of student demonstrators who had demanded the overthrow of the government.

Army tanks took up positions on main squares of the capital, and troops in full battle dress ringed the parliament building, where strongman President George Papadopoulos, a former army colonel who came to power in a 1967 coup, has his office.

Earlier, a tank ripped down the heavy iron gates at the Polytechnic Institute, and helmeted soldiers rushed through as students waved clubs and shouted "murderers."

A number of students were beaten and kicked as they pleaded for mercy. Dozens were thrown into police buses and presumably taken into custody.

Shortly after the soldiers entered the institute, demonstrators began to gather again outside the school, shouting antigovernment slogans. Police fired warning shots into the area in an attempt to disperse the crowd.

The army was called into action Friday night after six hours of bloody street fighting across downtown Athens. Police clashed with an estimated 15,000 demonstrators on virtually ever square of the capital.

The government said four demonstrators were killed Friday when they attacked state buildings, and hospital sources said at least 100 persons were hurt in the street disorders.

In announcing martial law, the government said Papadopoulos, who was sworn in as president last August after he had abolished the monarchy then headed by the exiled King Constantine, would make a radio and television address to the nation later today.

A government communique said martial law was imposed "because enemies of Greece have again proved unrepenting and do not want elections."

Spacemen Enter Skylab

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Skylab 3 astronauts, a trio of rookies seasoned by a docking problem they overcame handily, today start nearly three months of scientific research in their orbiting laboratory.

After rendezvous and docking, mission control denied permission Friday evening for Skylab 3 commander Gerald P. Carr and crewmates William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson to enter the home-sized space station 13 hours ahead of schedule.

A good night's sleep was more important, ground controllers said. So the astronauts bedded down on the couch-like seats in the Apollo command module that earlier had hooked onto the orbiting Skylab.

The astronauts were to arise at 7 a.m. EST and eat breakfast before removing the hatch from their cone-shaped command ship and crawling into the 84-ton lab, vacated by the Skylab 2 crew Sept. 25.

Their flight plan provided for a day of turning on switches, checking spacecraft systems and, as a ground controller explained Friday, "doing all the things you'd do after coming home from a long vacation."

Shortly before the astronauts said good night, Pogue said he had experienced nausea, apparently the result of weightlessness. He took additional motion sickness drugs and was told to restrict his movements.

Concern about motion sickness was another reason ground controllers wanted the Skylab 3 crew to spend Friday night in the command ship. Motion sickness that temporarily disabled the Skylab 2 crew was attributed to weightlessness experienced too soon in the roomy space station. All three Skylab 3 astronauts had taken pills periodically before and after launch as a precaution.

"I wish you were here," Gibson, a 37-year-old scientist, said as he ate supper after docking. "It's the only way to fly."

The astronauts spent eight hours firing the command ship's rocket engine in tiny bursts to close carefully on Skylab, orbiting 272 miles above the earth. Five earth orbits were required.

Then, using small rocket thrusters, the 41-year-old Carr nudged a docking probe protruding from the spaceship's nose into a collar on Skylab.

It didn't catch. He backed out and tried again. Nothing.

But on the third insertion at 5:01 p.m., it caught and the spacecrafts were joined.

Assessing the problem a few minutes later, astronauts and mission control agreed: The rookies hadn't charged hard enough.

"I think what happened is I just hit it too easy," Carr said. Carr, a Marine lieutenant colonel, added: "Can you imagine that, coming from a Marine?"

Pogue, a 43-year-old Air Force lieutenant colonel, and Carr and Gibson roared away from the Florida coast in full view of their families and tens of thousands of people who lined the Florida beaches to watch America's last manned launch until July 1975.

Cold air blew scattered snow into the Northeast and northern Midwest today and freezing temperatures extended deep into the South.

Kennedy's Son Faces Amputation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's 12-year-old son, Edward M. Jr., was scheduled for surgery today to amputate his right leg above the knee to check bone cancer.

Also today is the wedding of Kathleen Kennedy, the eldest of Robert F. Kennedy's children, and an aide said the senator had every hope of being able to give the bride away, as planned.

Friday, President Nixon called Georgetown Hospital and spoke with the senator and his son.

Dick Drayne, press secretary, said the senator and Mrs. Kennedy were "deeply touched by the President's thoughtfulness."

Edward is blond and blue-eyed. He has a sister, Kara Anne, 13, and a brother, Patrick Joseph, 6.

The boy entered the hospital Tuesday for diagnostic tests. He was not told of his condition and the surgery until Friday, at about noon.

Before that, Edward was the center of a crowd of visitors, including his parents, aunts Eunice Shriver and Pat Lawford, cousin Joseph P. Kennedy III, and some Kennedy friends, including the senator's college classmate Claude Hooton.

The child was in the corridor outside his room. He was in a wheel chair and wore yellow pajamas.

There was banter and story telling, Edward taking part with encouragement from his father. Part of this was the memories of an old snorkeling adventure.

After about an hour of this, Edward and his parents were alone in his room and he was told of his medical condition, Hooton said.

Hospital tests had revealed a malignant growth on the youngster's lower right leg. The doctors said the growth, in layman's terms, is bone cancer, a rare form of cancer which most frequently strikes young people between 10 and 20 years old.

Each Side Blames The Other In Special Session Failure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan's special session of the legislature ended in a deadlock Friday when both houses adjourned without passing campaign reform legislation.

Gilligan has left no doubt he will blame Republicans for the stalemate, and they in turn are already blaming him and his Democratic Party.

Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-3 Columbus, summed it up in a different fashion.

"Republicans gained 10 yards, Democrats gained 10 yards, Gilligan gained 10 yards, and the people lost 50," he said.

Rep. Charles E. Fry, R-75 Springfield, called the special session which began Oct. 23 "a political disaster" for Gilligan.

Gilligan had called the session for passage of campaign spending reform.

The special session began with the same hangup on which it ended — a partisan difference between Democrats and Republicans over who would be hurt the worst.

They were never able to work out a compromise on how to handle political contributions from labor, which normally backs Democrats, and corporations, which normally back Republicans.

The Senate adjourned at 11:48 a.m., shortly after a coalition of Republicans and Democrats in the House rejected an adjournment motion.

The House then reconsidered adjournment, and was momentarily stymied by a 35-35 tie. The leadership finally mustered another vote and the House also called it quits, 36-35.

Democrats, who control the House 58-41, saw their version of the bill changed by Senate Republicans, who have a 17-16 edge. Neither side budged far from original positions.

Many Republicans and Democrats, however, predicted campaign financing reforms would be passed when the 110th General Assembly reconvenes next Jan. 3.

Ohio EPA Eases Pollution Rules

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency said Friday state industries can use whatever fuels are available to get them through the energy crunch.

Dr. Ira Whitman, Ohio EPA director, said industries won't have to follow their air pollution abatement schedules filed with the EPA if the clean fuel required is not available.

He said, however, that industries using dirty fuel must pledge they will meet emission standards when the fuel shortage eases. Air quality goals have not been changed, he said.

Dr. Whitman said the new EPA policy on fuel will be effective immediately, in anticipation of the federal government acting to relax its standards during the crisis.

"It is important that we act now, clearly and decisively," he said.

"We are not lowering Ohio's present standards for air quality, nor are we drastically modifying the state's clean air programs," he said.

"We are, however, enabling state government to assist in alleviating immediate problems which may occur because of low sulfur fuel shortages in Ohio," he said.

The new policy allows industries presently burning low sulfur fuel to switch to dirtier fuel if it can prove clean fuel is unavailable.

Industries burning coal which planned on switching to clean fuels can keep on burning coal, he said.

Industries taking advantage of the new guidelines must commit themselves to meeting air pollution standards on time when the fuel crunch ends, he said.

Whitman encouraged industries now burning clean fuel to continue if possible. He said Ohio EPA will work to get clean fuel into highly polluted areas.

He said the agency also encourages those burning coal to install exhaust gas cleansing equipment.

The Ohio EPA director said if federal regulations enacted for the fuel crunch turn out to be more restrictive than expected, the state may have to modify the guidelines.

Fuel Drivers End Walkout, But New Stoppage Possible

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Striking fuel haulers returned to work late Friday in Central Ohio, but fuel deliveries continued to be threatened by the firing of 180 Teamsters by Ford Brothers, Inc., a local fuel transport company.

The company operates terminals in Columbus, Cincinnati, Marietta and Ironton. Dismissed Columbus drivers picketed the terminal Friday night.

The possibility of a sympathy walkout by other fuel haulers cast doubts on the longevity of an agreement worked out between Teamsters Local 413, Ford Brothers and three other terminals.

"As a result of the illegal work stoppage, Ford Brothers, Inc., did take proper action under the Central States Area Tank Trucker Agreement, resulting in the dismissal of the drivers," said company spokesman Carl Collins.

No union spokesmen could be reached for comment.

Burning Rules To Be Burden

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — New open burning regulations adopted by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency will be a financial burden for homebuilders "and eventually will cause a higher cost to be paid by Ohio home buyers," the Ohio Home Builders Association said today.

Under the regulation adopted Sept. 10, construction waste materials must be hauled away for burning, the association said.

The association said commercial haulers are charging $300-$1,000 to remove wastes from building sites and "this financial situation, added to the money market crisis, sewer bans, and today's fuel situation, explains why the cost of housing is daily rising."

The House then reconsidered adjournment, and was momentarily stymied by a 35-35 tie. The leadership finally mustered another vote and the House also called it quits, 36-35.

Democrats, who control the House 58-41, saw their version of the bill changed by Senate Republicans, who have a 17-16 edge. Neither side budged far from original positions.

Many Republicans and Democrats, however, predicted campaign financing reforms would be passed when the 110th General Assembly reconvenes next Jan. 3.

Nominations Completed For ASC Committeemen

Some 42 farm and ranch residents of Pickaway County are in the running for seven Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) community committees, according to County ASCS Executive Director Walton W. Spangler.

The mail election for ASC community committeemen is being held this month, and ballots will be mailed November 16 to all persons eligible to vote in the farmer committee elections, Spangler said. The final date for mailing voted ballots, or for dropping them off at the county ASCS office, is Dec. 3. Ballots will be counted on Dec. 5 in the county ASCS office, 1440 N. Court St., with the public invited to attend.

On Dec. 13 the newly elected community committeemen will hold a county convention to nominate and elect one county committee member and two alternates, Spangler pointed out. The newly-elected county committee member will serve for three years, the alternates for one year.

ASC community committeemen not only elect members of the ASC county committee, but also assist the county committee throughout the year in the administration of federal farm programs locally. In Pickaway County the principal farm programs are Feed Grain and Wheat, Wool, and Commodity loans.

In the community committee mail election, farmers in each community will elect three committee members and two alternates, all to serve one-year terms, Spangler said.

He pointed out that any farmer who is eligible to take part in any ASCS program is eligible to vote in the mail election. Voting eligibility is determined without regard to race, sex, color, religion or national origin.

Spangler said a list of known eligible voters is on file at the county office, and is open for public inspection. "If a man or woman feels he or she is eligible to vote and is not listed, just call it to the attention of anyone in the office, and it will be checked out right away," he said.

Insecticides Can Control Pests In House Plants

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

Most of the common pests of house plants can be controlled with insecticide sprays or dips. Exceptions are slugs and snails. These require poison baits.

Insecticides may be applied as dusts, but sprays and dips are preferred because they usually give better control, are less likely to leave objectionable residues, and do not drift to nearby objects so readily when applied, according to entomologists at The Ohio State University.

For best results, apply control measures at the first sign of pests. If infestation continues, repeat treatment in a week or 10 days, unless otherwise noted under control recommendations for specific pests.

Insect pests most commonly found on house plants are aphids, mites, fungus gnats, mealybugs, millipedes, psocids, scales, thrips, and whiteflies. If any unknown insect appears, place it in a pill bottle and bring to your County Extension Office for identification.

Insecticides such as chlordane, lindane, malathion, etc. may be mixed with water and used as a spray or dip. Following are rates to mix: Chlordane, 45 per cent emulsifiable concentrate, two teaspoons per gallon of water; Lindane, 20 per cent emulsifiable concentrate, one teaspoon per gallon of water; Malathion, 57 per cent emulsifiable concentrate, two teaspoons per gallon of water.

Some plants are more difficult to wet than others. If a preparation does not readily spread over and wet a plant, add ½ teaspoon of mild household detergent (not soap) per gallon of spray or dip. The detergent improves the wetting power of the mixture and reduces visible residues.

Sprays are used most often to treat plants, but they may also be used to treat surfaces of soil, pots, saucers, or shelves to help control some pests.

Spray plants until they are wet—no longer. Apply spray with a good hand atomizer or small compressed air sprayer.

Hand atomizers that hold ½ pint to 1 quart of spray are suitable for spraying one or a few plants. Choose an atomizer that will deliver a continuous spray and that has an adjustable nozzle that can be turned to direct the spray upward or downward.

It is sometimes more convenient to dip plants into the insecticide-water solution than to spray them. In this case, put the mixture in a pail or pan large enough to accommodate the top of the largest plant to be dipped. Then turn each plant upside down and immerse the foliage and stems in the mixture for a few seconds. To keep loose soil from spilling out as you turn the plant over, hold crumpled paper or a cardboard disk firmly over the soil around the plant. Slit the cardboard disk to fit around the plant stem. Keep your hands out of the dip.

Washing the plant with soapy water and a soft brush or cloth may be all that is needed to remove aphids, mealybugs and scale insects from broad-leaved plants. Use 2 teaspoons of a mild detergent to a gallon of water.

Ohio Gains From Tourist Trade

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The operator of a Cleveland tourist bureau says out-of-state visitors spent $1.1 billion in Ohio last year.

Frank R. Carrell, associate director of the Cleveland Convention and Visitors Bureau, told a legislative committee his estimate is based on a federal transportation census.

Higher Prices, Short Fertilizer Supplies Face Farmers In 1974

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

"Prices of fertilizer are expected to move upward significantly," says Dennis Henderson, Extension Economist at The Ohio State University. "Even so, many Ohio farmers will not be able to obtain adequate supplies for high crop yields," he adds.

Price rises, made possible by recent Cost of Living Council action, will increase the amount of fertilizer available to Ohio farmers, Henderson explains, but there will still be some shortage. The Council exempted from Phase IV controls the sale of fertilizer and nutrient materials used in producing fertilizer and explosives. Also exempted were wages and salaries of workers in fertilizer manufacturing and mixing plants.

"There is still much uncertainty about the effect of the removal of price ceilings," Henderson says. "Supplies are expected to be inadequate to meet a predicted 10 per cent increase in demand; however, higher prices will help make domestic markets competitive with foreign buyers for the available supplies."

Prices on the export market have been about 30 per cent higher than on domestic markets, according to Henderson. To make domestic markets attractive to U. S. fertilizer producers, the price will need to rise that 30 per cent—maybe as high as 40 per cent—above U. S. prices in October. Despite this, he points out that many firms will not be able to make large shifts to domestic outlets because of commitments to deliver fertilizer to foreign buyers.

Encouraging reports are the indications to the Cost of Living Council by nearly 40 producing companies of their plans to make 350,000 tons of additional fertilizer available for domestic use in the October-to-December period, and over 1,150 thousand additional tons during January-to-June, 1974. A release by the Cost of Living Council also noted that fertilizer firms plan to continue operating marginally productive facilities, and some firms will begin construction of new production facilities.

Property Tax Bills In Ohio Show Decline

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Property tax bills in Ohio this year dropped by three per cent from 1972 levels, the first such decline since 1937, the state Department of Taxation reported today.

Henderson notes that nitrogen may be shorter in supply than other fertilizer elements. There is increasing demand for nitrogen fertilizer, especially for use on corn, and short supplies of natural gas may make even maintaining present production rates difficult. The domestic price may need to rise drastically—up to 100 per cent—to divert nitrogen and natural gas from other uses to fertilizer.

Some efforts are being made to give fertilizer production a higher priority so it can compete for natural gas, an important factor in nitrogen production. A U. S. government task force, set up to stimulate supplies of fertilizer available to farmers, is seeking to raise the priorities for natural gas feedstocks to ammonia producers working with the Federal Power Commission and state regulatory agencies. The task force is also working with the Department of Transportation to eliminate shipping bottlenecks and to improve rail car and transportation availability during the main shipping season. It will explore the possibility of stepping up the production of rail hopper cars.

Other government efforts include developing, with the USDA's Extension Service, an aggressive campaign to advise farmers on minimum fertilizer requirements for the 1974 planting season. A system will be instituted to monitor exports of fertilizer contracted for shipment in 1973-74.

Several recent developments have set the stage for the present fertilizer situation.

Because of heavy demand for U. S. agricultural products, both at home and on the world market, high crop prices are encouraging farmers to increase production. As a result, farmers will plant more acres and will need more fertilizer for high yields in 1974. Fertilizer application is especially important on corn; in fact, over 96 per cent of all corn acreage receives fertilizer compared to 62 per cent for wheat and 31 for soybeans.

Consumption of fertilizer plant nutrients has risen 135 per cent from 1959-60 to 1972-73, but prices paid by farmers for many fertilizer materials have actually declined Since 1971, world prices for a number of fertilizer materials have moved above government controlled domestic prices, providing an inducement to export. During the first half of 1973, exports of anhydrous ammonia and ammonium phosphate fertilizers were up 54 and 34 per cent, respectively, from year-earlier levels.

Henderson sees the local retailer as a key person in fertilizer allocation. He says the retailer will probably take care of loyal customers and those with good credit records first. Now, he points out, is a good time for farmers to capitalize on their records as good customers. The bulk of the shortage problems, he believes, will be for farmers who are not good credit risks or who have not had excellent working arrangements with local fertilizer dealers.

Since the fertilizer supply situation will remain uncertain for some time, Henderson suggests that farmers order early, use fertilizer wisely in crop rotations, and take delivery whenever the fertilizer is available.

Salmon Follow Beef

From beef to pork to turkey the meat crunch has taken a severe beating in the United States in the last year. Prices of some of the meat commodities have begun to drop back from their record highs. Just in time, because the Alaska red salmon is now taking it on the lam.

Around Bristol Bay, American fishermen formerly brought in as many as 50 million red salmon. The catch this season was only about 700,000. The poorest haul on record is blamed on many things depending upon the source of the complaint.

Fishermen lay part of the blame to Japanese greed and part to poor planning. The Alaska Fish and Game Department says the unusually cold winters of the last few years are to blame.

None of the finger-pointing is bringing back the salmon and the Bay, which for years provided 75 per cent of the U.S. catch, may be closed to commercial fishing next year.

Perhaps the National Park Service now will conduct a new head count of the bison herds grazing on the plains. At last count the buffalo were far from extinct, but rustlers had few calls for them until recently.

Plight Of Viet Babies

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, —Rosemary Taylor, a lovely Australian girl who manages to run four Saigon orphanages with little visible means of support, will not even guess at the number of children the departed American servicemen left behind.

"I've seen the figure of 15,000," she told me on her most recent visit to the U.S. to deliver some of her wards to foster parents. "There may be fewer, there may be more. There's really no way of knowing. All I know is that we're crowded to the walls at To-Am, Allambie, Newhaven and our new place, Hibong. Hibong means 'hope,' and that seems to be about all we have there."

The children that are now being left on her busy doorsteps, or she is able to accept from other orphanages, are now all of Vietnamese parents.

"There's no way of describing what an economic blow it was to South Vietnam when the Americans left," she told me. "When you were last there, the exchange rate was 118 piastres to one American dollar. Now it is 520 to one. Rice — without which nobody can live, really — has gone up from $14 a sack to $40. Wages haven't been raised to keep abreast. More and more Vietnamese married couples are now in such bad need they feel they just can't afford to support additional children. So, a lot of the children wind up with us, and many of them are in terrible shape. That's why we needed Hibong. It's for intensive care of babies from one to three months. We need volunteer nurses, quite desperately."

One of Miss Taylor's special problems is the care and placement of children sired in Vietnam by American black troops.

"The poor dears are given a terrible time, by and large," she said. "They are terribly discriminated against, at home, school, and even in some of the orphanages. Their future is pretty grim. Even if their mothers are now married and have children, the stepfather of the half-black has no real love for that child. Children of their own age ostracize them. They call them 'Black Americans.' They are the most obvious of the many illegitimate children you see in Saigon and elsewhere in South Vietnam. Some of the children of white American soldiers could easily pass as all-Vietnamese, and that will be their hope and goal as they grow older. But the half-black is something apart, no matter how hard the individual child tries to fit in and be loved."

"A couple of years ago we found a half-black child, a darling little girl, who had been terribly beaten by her stepfather. She actually had a broken leg that had partly healed but had to be rebroken and straightened so that she wouldn't have the additional problem of limping through life. When she first came to us we thought her teeth were rotten. They weren't rotten at all. They simply had been broken during beatings. She had marks on her body that could only have been inflicted by cigaret burns. Well, she's alive and well and happy in a new home in Arizona, but it took her a year to get over her fear of her new foster father, because of her memory of the man who had treated her so wretchedly."

Not all the departed American troops who fathered babies in Vietnam are heartless rakes, Rosemary said.

"I frequently see Vietnamese girls, usually with their half-American children, cashing checks and money orders at the Bank of America in downtown Saigon," she told me. "But they are the exceptions, I'd say. There's one case we've been trying to help that's an even greater exception. It's the case of a girl who was with an American black for a long time. The oldest of their four children is six or seven. We took care of the mother when her new baby was born, eight months after the father left for home. The couple tried to get married during their time together, but your military frowned on that. Now he's at a camp back in the states trying to save enough money to bring his family here, get married to the mother, and live happily ever after. But there's a problem. She keeps telephoning him, asking him how he's coming along with his savings — and that wipes out the savings."

Rosemary, whose address is To-Am Nursery, FPO San Francisco 96620, has placed dozens of Vietnamese-born children in American homes. She has now discovered that, thanks to a change in U.S. adoption laws, bachelors are beginning to take an interest in adopting a child — or children. And spinsters, too. While she was in New York, after having dropped off nine children for adoption in the Denver area, another 18 arrived in New York in the care of one of her volunteer nurses.

I asked her how much her Saigon operations were costing.

"About $15,000 a month, counting rent, food, clothes, and medical care," she said.

"Does the South Vietnamese government help you?"

"Yes," Rosemary Taylor said. "They give us four cents a day for each child."

Reform Judaism Gets New Leader

NEW YORK (AP) — Reform Judaism, a once highly rationalized arm of the faith, today has a new national leader with a poetic, mystical side to him.

Rabbi Alexander M. Schindler, installed this week as president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, says: "We have to recapture a sense of the holy in life."

"Man requires this inward life that emanates from a mystical core," the 47-year-old rabbi added in an interview. "The human story cannot be told without the dimension that transcends all logic."

The gray-haired, 5-foot-9 rabbi, who dabbles in poetry as a pastime, said reform Judaism was "hyper-rational" when it developed 100 years ago in this country.

"But the imbalance is being corrected," he said. "Mysticism is a vital aspect of religion. If we concentrate only on the social implications of faith, we fail to draw on its essence, on the waters of its source."

A scholar who for 15 years has directed the national educational activities of reform Judaism, Rabbi Schindler was described by its board of trustees as "a leader in the tradition of the prophets."

The son of Yiddish poet Eliezer Schindler, the rabbi was brought to this country in 1938 as a boy of 13 by his family from Germany in the early years of Hitlerism. Rabbi Schindler said his experience with Nazism was "not grave."

"I only experienced discrimination rather than extermination," he said. He is author of a book by that title, "From Discrimination to Extermination," analyzing the Hitler years of 1933 to 1945.

A World War II combat veteran, he served with the U.S. Army's ski troops in three European campaigns, receiving the Bronze Star and Purple Heart. He still skis for recreation.

"Despair and gloom are not part of my vocabulary," he said.

Of the state of the country's religious health, he said: "I see a resurgence rather than a diminution. There's a 'soul weather' about us."

"I think we're entering an age more amenable to the religious spirit. Increasingly, people are coming to the conviction that religion is essential, that the future of mankind cannot be entrusted to scientific rationalism."

Concerning the national political scene, he said there was a "cold wind blowing in our hearts at the freedom eroded and highest trust betrayed" but there are "countervailing forces of morality."

"The Constitution demonstrated its holding power," he said. "I see beneath the gloom a new buoyancy rising, a kind of hopefulness. There was almost a coup d'etat from within, but the evil decree has been averted. The system has held up."

He said the experience had demonstrated more vividly to the nation the indispensability of religious-moral fibre. "A nation's strength depends on its integrity," he said.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Marijuana may be of tremendous importance in reducing the fluid tensions in the eye associated with glaucoma. Scientists at the University of California, Los Angeles, have come across this interesting phenomenon.

A carefully controlled study indicated a decrease in the intra-ocular pressure in glaucoma patients who were induced to smoke marijuana in controlled doses.

This finding is of particular significance. It indicates that a dangerous drug, when used in well-controlled reliable studies, can prove beneficial medically.

It also indicates that the potential of a valuable drug can be overlooked when it is promiscuously and indiscriminately used by those who do not know its hazards.

I want to emphasize that this exciting scientific finding must not give the uninformed user of marijuana an excuse for further indulgence, nor to tempt those who have not tried it.

Sexual impotence has for years been in the province of psychiatric investigation.

It is undoubtedly true that there may be a distinct relationship between emotional stress, psychological disorders and impotence. It has also been recognized that there is a relationship between circulatory problems, especially of the legs, and sexual impotence.

Dr. Vaclav Michal, from Prague, has been performing operations to increase the blood supply in an effort to bring better circulation to the lower extremities. Some of his patients who formerly were completely impotent have regained their sexual function.

The relationship between the two conditions has been known for about 50 years, but to date has not been as thoroughly investigated.

This opens wide avenues for practical treatment associated with the psychological support so essential in the treatment of the total person involved with such an important problem.

A great deal of attention is being paid to the dangers of using eyeglasses that shatter and cause severe injuries.

Of course, everyone knows that eyeglasses can break when they are hit. It is not, however, usually recognized that some eyeglasses can break spontaneously, with no outside contact.

Dr. Herbert L. Moss, an optometrist of Woodbridge, N.J., reported a spontaneous break in glasses during a thunderstorm. A number of other cases occurred while the wearer was simply walking.

Although these cases are relatively rare, Dr. Moss warns that the so-called "unbreakable," "shatterproof" and "safe" eyeglasses need further study to insure their infallibility.

Plastic lenses will, it is hoped, eventually replace all other glasses so that dangerous accidents can be prevented.

Female Jet Pilot Discovers Personal Freedom In Flight

NEW YORK (AP) — "LaGuardia Tower, this is Exec Jet 773 requesting landing instructions," radioed the plane as it neared the midpoint of its Boston-to-Charlotte, N.C., flight.

"Good morning, Judy. It's nice to hear a sweet voice this time of morning," came the reply from one of the men who spend the lonely morning hours drinking coffee and watching radar screens.

To many of them, the voice of a pretty young girl like Judy Alcombrack crackling into the speakers of the airport control tower is a welcome inspiration.

At 28, Judy is one of the youngest women jet pilots in the country, flying an air taxi under contract with the U.S. Postal Service. Based in Columbus, Ohio, she has logged more than 2,500 hours of flight.

"I don't want it to sound like I'm bragging, but a lot of hard work and dedication got me this job," she says. That included bartending, waiting on restaurant tables and cleaning the interiors of airplanes to finance flight lessons.

As a first officer for Executive Jet Aviation, her pilot's license includes airline transport ratings for instrument, multiengine, sea plane and flight-instrument instructor, which more than qualifies her to fly the $1.5 million Westwind Jet Commander.

Although still paying off a $7,000 loan for her training, she gives free flying lessons to those as eager to learn as she was.

"When people ask me what I do, I tell them I'm a mortician. They usually laugh and say, 'Sure you are.' I then reply, 'Well then I'm a jet pilot.' They still usually laugh."

Judy admits that flying a night mail run can ruin a single girl's social life, but she says her job as a jet pilot is the most important thing in her life followed by her sports car and her boyfriend.

To a girl who calls it fun to repair car engines, it's not surprising to hear her describe her highly technical job in these terms:

"The cockpit of this jet is no more complicated than my kitchen. Its simple."

Old CCAFB Land Bought

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — The Community Improvement Corp. of Wilmington purchased 833 acres of the old Clinton County Air Force Base Thursday for use as an industrial park.

Purchase price was $1.2 million. City Solicitor James Miller and Thomas J. Hunter, corporation president, presented a check for $120,000, representing a 10 per cent down payment, to officials of the General Services Administration. The remainder will be paid over 20 years at 7 1/4 per cent interest.

The ceremony culminated a community action program that began in March, 1971, when the Defense Department announced the base would be closed the following June.

Another section of the former base is being used by a vocational school.

Salmon Follow Beef

From beef to pork to turkey the meat crunch has taken a severe beating in the United States in the last year. Prices of some of the meat commodities have begun to drop back from their record highs. Just in time, because the Alaska red salmon is now taking it on the lam.

Around Bristol Bay, American fishermen formerly brought in as many as 50 million red salmon. The catch this season was only about 700,000. The poorest haul on record is blamed on many things depending upon the source of the complaint.

Fishermen lay part of the blame to Japanese greed and part to poor planning. The Alaska Fish and Game Department says the unusually cold winters of the last few years are to blame.

None of the finger-pointing is bringing back the salmon and the Bay, which for years provided 75 per cent of the U.S. catch, may be closed to commercial fishing next year.

Perhaps the National Park Service now will conduct a new head count of the bison herds grazing on the plains. At last count the buffalo were far from extinct, but rustlers had few calls for them until recently.

Plight Of Viet Babies

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK. —Rosemary Taylor, a lovely Australian girl who manages to run four Saigon orphanages with little visible means of support, will not even guess at the number of children the departed American servicemen left behind.

"I've seen the figure of 15,000," she told me on her most recent visit to the U.S. to deliver some of her wards to foster parents. "There may be fewer, there may be more. There's really no way of knowing. All I know is that we're crowded to the walls at To-Am, Allambie, Newhaven and our new place, Hibong. Hibong means 'hope,' and that seems to be about all we have there."

The children that are now being left on her busy doorsteps, or she is able to accept from other orphanages, are now all of Vietnamese parents.

"There's no way of describing what an economic blow it was to South Vietnam when the Americans left," she told me. Damage was being surveyed over the city in the wake of one of the most boisterous Halloweens in recent history, according to Mayor B. T. Hedges.

One of the acts which caused quite a lot of furor in uptown districts was damage done at the Crist Department Store when some person cut a large plate glass window facing Main St. It was believed the culprit used a glass-cutter to damage the $150 window.

Members of city council began a study of the report of Fosdick and Hilmer, Cincinnati engineers, employed to survey the city to determine its electrical and water needs, and what fair rates should be for each.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff asked cooperation of farmers in an effort to halt the epidemic of chicken stealing.

Thurman I. Miller, W. Main St., was elected Worshipful Master of the Blue Lodge of Masons at the annual election. Theodore Steele retired as Worshipful Master.

The Circleville Public Library announced that it would be open for the use of any person in Pickaway County beginning Jan. 1, 1934.

Eye Steel Firm Discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is bargaining with the nation's steel industry for an agreement to end discrimination against minority workers.

Government attorneys hope to avoid a hard-fought lawsuit but that step remains a possibility, said Asst. Atty. Gen. J. Stanley Pottinger.

He said in an interview that the steel negotiations are part of a growing effort to coax a number of industries and unions into agreements guaranteeing job opportunities to blacks and other minority workers.

Thermostats May Be Faulty If Heat Uneven

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

As the energy crisis concern causes thermostats to be turned down, any unevenness of heat is likely to be more noticeable. If you feel that your house cools down too much before the thermostat turns on the furnace, it may be time to consider a new thermostat, or a different location. That's the advice of Roger Miller, Extension Agricultural Engineer at The Ohio State University.

Many thermostats contain small heating elements called "anticipators." The heat anticipator coil, Miller explains, raises the temperature within the thermostat case giving it a false reading and causing it to turn the heating unit off before the room reaches the desired temperature. The heat left in the system will then bring the temperature up to the desired point. If there is not sufficient residual heat to do this, a thermostat working properly will sense the deficiency and turn the heating unit on again. In this way the desired temperature is reached in small steps. This means that the house is not overheated and the occupants will be more comfortable.

Improper location of a thermostat is another reason why your heating system may not be doing the job it should. The thermostat can sense the temperature only in the room where it is located. For this reason it is important that the thermostat be located either where the temperature is representative of the whole house, or where temperature control is most important.

Places where you should not locate a thermostat, Miller says, are: on outside walls, near outside doors, near heat outlets, behind doors, near cold air registers, on walls that receive heat from the fireplace, or on walls that contain heating pipes, ducts or chimneys.

Also, placing lamps, T. V. sets, or radios under or near a thermostat will give it false readings and result in a poor control of the heating system, the engineer advises.

ASCS Voter List Open To Public

The list of persons known to be eligible to vote in the annual election of Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committeemen is now officially open for public inspection, reports Walton W. Spangler, county executive director for ASCS in Pickaway County.

Spangler extended a special invitation to farmers who are new in the county this year to check with the county ASCS office and make sure their name is on the farmer committeeman voter list and on the mailing list for farm program news.

Ballots of the mail election will be mailed Nov. 16, Spangler said, and he hopes that the list of eligible voters will be completely up to date, without one name missing.

"Voting eligibility depends on whether you are eligible to participate in any ASCS program offered in the county, and virtually every Pickaway County farm owner, operator, or tenant is eligible to participate, whether he actually is in a program or not," Spangler said. "So if you're new in the county and haven't been in the ASCS office yet, please drop by to be sure you will get a ballot, to make sure your name is on the list to receive our regular newsletters and announcements and to get acquainted," he added. "All ASCS programs and elections are administered without regard to race, color, sex, religion or national origin."

4-H On The Go

For years girls have been learning to sew and cook by belonging to a 4-H home economics club. This year we had boys who learned to cook out-doors in Outdoor Cookery. They had great enthusiasm for the project and their reward for going to the meetings was getting to eat what they cooked. They learned about nutrition, too. The Rookie Chefs, a club of 10 boys, ages 9, 10, and 11, won an outstanding ribbon for their efforts in addition to the blue ribbons they earned. Their advisor is Mrs. Ronald Lundberg, of Circleville. This project can be taken by a group of five or more in an existing 4-H club and there were several clubs participating in the county.

There is something about cooking and eating outdoors that fills us with friendliness, joy, and a deep satisfaction as well as food. Food tastes better and appetites are keener. It doesn't matter whether the smoke curls upward from beside a lake, from the fireplace in the local park, or from a burner in your own back yard.

If you agree with this, you are ready to graduate from making marshmallow torches and charcoaled hot dogs to cooking meals that show you know "what's cooking . . . and how!"

Talk to your friends to see if there are at least six of you who would like to form an "Outdoor Cookery Club." If you like to eat, this is the project for you!

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Secretary Too Private

DEAR ABBY: My wife is the private secretary to an important executive. She called me at work to tell me she was at her boss's HOUSE for a few hours to take dictation. She said he was on his "vacation" and was afraid if he went to the office he'd get tied up there all day.

I hit the ceiling, and told her in no uncertain terms that I didn't like the idea. She assured me that her boss's wife was home so I should simmer down.

An hour later I phoned the boss's house to make sure his wife was home. (She was.) Then I asked to talk to the boss. I told him it was O.K. this once to have my wife working at his house, but I didn't like the idea, and not to ask her again.

Well, Abby, since that happened my wife has been boiling mad at me. She said I humiliated her before her boss and his wife, and if I ever did that again, she would divorce me!

She insists I don't trust her. I do trust her, but I don't trust her boss. Do you think I was wrong to check up on her, and tell her boss how I felt?

FRANKLY JEALOUS

DEAR FRANKLY: Yes. You showed an insulting lack of confidence in both your wife and her boss.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with a man who is attractive, hard-working, honest, sober and morally sound, but he has one failing that absolutely drives me up a wall. He is cheap from the word go!

When he takes me out (which isn't too often) we always go to the least expensive place he can find. And there can be a parking lot right next where we're going, but he drives around for half an hour to find a parking place on the street.

He tells me not to buy him anything for Christmas, because he hates to shop, and he's not buying me anything.

Abby, I realize that he was poor when he was young, but he makes good money now, and has only himself to support.

He says he loves me, and we're discussing marriage, but I'm wondering what marriage would be like with a man who's so tight with his money. He's a beautiful person otherwise. Do you think he'll ever change?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: He's a creature of habit. I doubt if he will ever enjoy spending money, but with some gentle prodding, you would loosen him up a bit. When discussing marriage, don't forget to discuss budget, or you and this "beautiful person" will be having money fights for the duration of your marriage.

DEAR ABBY: My husband, who is 63, has expressed the desire to move to either Arizona, California, or Florida when he retires. He says he is tired of battling the Nebraska winters and wants to take it easy in a milder climate.

Abby, we've spent all our lives here, and all our family and friends are here, and I can't see us picking up and leaving all this behind to start all over again.

I'm not crazy about the winters here, either, but climate isn't everything. Don't lifelong friends, and family mean anything?

Please help me convince my husband that this is no time to pull up stakes and settle in a strange place with a bunch of strangers.

Or do you think maybe I'm the one who's wrong. He's even talking about a mobile home, or a senior citizens community.

IN A DAZE

DEAR IN: Don't make any decisions until you get a preview of the place your husband has in mind. You may be pleasantly surprised.

Flying Hurts Femininity

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Here's a word of caution for women who want a man's job.

A Cincinnati grandmother who has been flying professionally for 16 years thinks her work may be damaging her femininity.

Claire Brunswick Phillips, the first woman pilot awarded the National Business Aircraft Association's (NBAA) "Million Miler" pilot safety award, said her concern comes from her piloting duties.

"It's almost a subconscious thing... a feeling that I'm somehow gradually losing my emotional makeup as a woman. Maybe it's just having all those salesmen depending on me for transportation," she said.

And, she said, "it takes an awful lot of time—years of being away from your family."

But she says she will continue to fly "until I bust my physical or the fuel shortage gets me."

Thermostats May Be Faulty If Heat Uneven

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

As the energy crisis concern causes thermostats to be turned down, any unevenness of heat is likely to be more noticeable. If you feel that your house cools down too much before the thermostat turns on the furnace, it may be time to consider a new thermostat, or a different location. That's the advice of Roger Miller, Extension Agricultural Engineer at The Ohio State University.

Many thermostats contain small heating elements called "anticipators." The heat anticipator coil, Miller explains, raises the temperature within the thermostat case giving it a false reading and causing it to turn the heating unit off before the room reaches the desired temperature. The heat left in the system will then bring the temperature up to the desired point. If there is not sufficient residual heat to do this, a thermostat working properly will sense the deficiency and turn the heating unit on again. In this way the desired temperature is reached in small steps. This means that the house is not overheated and the occupants will be more comfortable.

Improper location of a thermostat is another reason why your heating system may not be doing the job it should. The thermostat can sense the temperature only in the room where it is located. For this reason it is important that the thermostat be located either where the temperature is representative of the whole house, or where temperature control is most important.

Places where you should not locate a thermostat, Miller says, are: on outside walls, near outside doors, near heat outlets, behind doors, near cold air registers, on walls that receive heat from the fireplace, or on walls that contain heating pipes, ducts or chimneys.

Also, placing lamps, T. V. sets, or radios under or near a thermostat will give it false readings and result in a poor control of the heating system, the engineer advises.

NEW INDUSTRIAL ARTS TEACHER—Mr. Kirk is shown in the industrial arts shop with a group of interested students looking on. Kirk considers teaching more interesting than other fields because he works directly with people like these.

Mr. Kirk Finds First Position Rewarding

By TERESA OHOL

Mr. Kirk, our industrial arts teacher, is new to Teays Valley this year. He graduated from Ohio State University with a bachelor of science degree in industrial arts education. All of his major and minor subjects were related to industrial arts. When he first started college, he was studying engineering but later decided he was more interested in working directly with people rather than with complicated problems, so he chose industrial arts.

This is Mr. Kirk's first teaching position. The one thing he mentioned he likes best about teaching is working only six hours a day, his working day is over at 1 p.m. When asked why he picked Teays Valley out of all the other schools, he replied, "I like the facilities and the location."

He also likes the informal classroom he has. He says it provides a good working atmosphere. He feels all of his students enjoy the class. The projects they do are ones they have chosen themselves. There are no real assignments except a few occasional reading assignments out of the textbook.

Teacher's Aide Is Kept Busy

KEEP SMILING—Mrs. Eva Myers tries to smile while conducting study hall. As teacher's aide at TV, Mrs. Myers checks attendance and checks hall passes. Like other members of the staff, the best thing about her job is the short working day.

By JULIE GREEN

Mrs. Eva Myers is a teacher's aide in the high school this year. She checks attendance and takes charge of hall passes in the study hall. She has had experience as a teacher's aide in Columbus schools by helping students with their reading.

Mrs. Myers feels that her biggest problem at the beginning of the year was getting to know the names of the students. What she likes best about her job is the short work day. She has two students in the Teays Valley Junior High. They like her working at school because she is acquainted with the school activities and they can discuss them at home.

When asked her opinion of the students, Mrs. Myers stated, "I feel that the majority of the students are very cooperative and are a fine group of people."

FTA Seeking Members

By CATHY MYERS

If you are a junior or senior interested in joining Future Teachers of America, now is your chance. All you have to do is attend the Nov. 20 meeting at 1 p.m.

Future Teachers of America is an organization for students planning to attend college and perhaps planning to major in Education. The club members operate the coat check at all home basketball games. They give a Christmas tea for last years senior members and also a tea after the National Honor Society tapping service.

This year senior members will be substituting for teachers and all member's may be teacher aides. One day in the spring senior members will also teach a day in a subject which interests them.

New Study Hall Monitor Is Former Teacher

MR. HOWARD HOSLER

By ESTILL SALYERS

Mr. Howard Hosler, study hall monitor at Teays Valley said, "Students today are smarter, better looking and have an easier way of life."

Because of Hosler's 35 years of teaching experience Mr. Toney hired him to keep study hall not a recreation class. His teaching experiences include physical education, mathematics, and even home economics. He was a principal and superintendent also.

Mr. Hosler feels the junior high and high school are not getting the maximum benefit of going to school in double sessions. "It will not continue very much longer because something is bound to come about," he replied.

He likes his job a lot but he has problems getting up so early in the morning. "I like my students and feel that they have resumed the responsibilities for the school. The good students are involved in maintaining the value of the school."

Mrs. Edwards Makes Changes In TV Library

By ROBERTA LALIK

"I am here to help the kids get what they need in the line of book information," said Mrs. Edwards, the new librarian of Teays Valley High School.

Mrs. Edwards has brought a change to the atmosphere and operation of the school library. "There will be no more library cards because they are a nuisance. All you do is sign your name and your first period room number." Thus, the amount of paper work and consumption has been reduced.

She has organized a conference room for teachers and students. The chess club also uses this room to practice.

The new librarian is setting aside a shelf for professional books on teaching to help the teachers stay informed on the latest techniques in their field.

She is also putting up clippings of Teays Valley students from the newspaper and is planning to enlarge the bulletin board display in the library.

To help with the changes in the library, Mrs. Edwards has secured some of the students as librarians and although she has no favorites, she really likes her "hard working librarians."

Vote Scheduled In Transit Strike

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Efforts to start city buses rolling again shifted into high gear Friday.

Federal mediator C. William Miller said striking transportation workers would vote Sunday on a proposed agreement to end the walkout.

About 450 drivers and maintenance employees refused to work Monday, stranding unsuspecting commuters at neighborhood bus stops throughout Columbus.

NEW INDUSTRIAL ARTS TEACHER—Mr. Kirk is shown in the industrial arts shop with a group of interested students looking on. Kirk considers teaching more interesting than other fields because he works directly with people like these.

Mr. Kirk Finds First Position Rewarding

By TERESA OHOL

Mr. Kirk, our industrial arts teacher, is new to Teays Valley this year. He graduated from Ohio State University with a bachelor of science degree in industrial arts education. All of his major and minor subjects were related to industrial arts. When he first started college, he was studying engineering but later decided he was more interested in working directly with people rather than with complicated problems, so he chose industrial arts. This is Mr. Kirk's first teaching position. The one thing he mentioned he likes best about teaching is working only six hours a day, his working day is over at 1 p.m. When asked why he picked Teays Valley out of all the other schools, he replied, "I like the facilities and the location."

He also likes the informal classroom he has. He says it provides a good working atmosphere. He feels all of his students enjoy the class. The projects they do are ones they have chosen themselves. There are no real assignments except a few occasional reading assignments out of the textbook.

Teacher's Aide Is Kept Busy

KEEP SMILING—Mrs. Eva Myers tries to smile while conducting study hall. As teacher's Aide at TV, Mrs. Myers checks attendance and checks hall passes. Like other members of the staff, the best thing about her job is the short working day.

By JULIE GREEN

Mrs. Eva Myers is a teacher's aide in the high school this year. She checks attendance and takes charge of hall passes in the study hall. She has had experience as a teacher's aide in Columbus schools by helping students with their reading. Mrs. Myers feels that her biggest problem at the beginning of the year was getting to know the names of the students. What she likes best about her job is the short work day. She has two students in the Teays Valley Junior High. They like her working at school because she is acquainted with the school activities and they can discuss them at home. When asked her opinion of the students, Mrs. Myers stated, "I feel that the majority of the students are very cooperative and are a fine group of people."

FTA Seeking Members

By CATHY MYERS

If you are a junior or senior interested in joining Future Teachers of America, now is your chance. All you have to do is attend the Nov. 20 meeting at 1 p.m. Future Teachers of America is an organization for students planning to attend college and perhaps planning to major in Education. The club members operate the coat check at all home basketball games. They give a Christmas tea for last years senior members and also a tea after the National Honor Society tapping service. This year senior members will be substituting for teachers and all member's may be teacher aides. One day in the spring senior members will also teach a day in a subject which interests them.

New Study Hall Monitor Is Former Teacher

MR. HOWARD HOSLER

By ESTILL SALYERS
Mr. Howard Hosler, study hall monitor at Teays Valley said, "Students today are smarter, better looking and have an easier way of life." Because of Hosler's 35 years of teaching experience Mr. Toney hired him to keep study hall not a recreation class. His teaching experiences include physical education, mathematics, and even home economics. He was a principal and superintendent also. Mr. Hosler feels the junior high and high school are not getting the maximum benefit of going to school in double sessions. "It will not continue very much longer because something is bound to come about," he replied. He likes his job a lot but he has problems getting up so early in the morning. "I like my students and feel that they have resumed the responsibilities for the school. The good students are involved in maintaining the value of the school."

Mrs. Edwards Makes Changes In TV Library

By ROBERTA LALIK

"I am here to help the kids get what they need in the line of book information," said Mrs. Edwards, the new librarian of Teays Valley High School. Mrs. Edwards has brought a change to the atmosphere and operation of the school library. "There will be no more library cards because they are a nuisance. All you do is sign your name and your first period room number." Thus, the amount of paper work and consumption has been reduced. She has organized a conference room for teachers and students. The chess club also uses this room to practice. The new librarian is setting aside a shelf for professional books on teaching to help the teachers stay informed on the latest techniques in their field. She is also putting up clippings of Teays Valley students from the newspaper and is planning to enlarge the bulletin board display in the library. To help with the changes in the library, Mrs. Edwards has secured some of the students as librarians and although she has no favorites, she really likes her "hard working librarians."

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The director of the Ohio Department of Administrative Services, Joseph J. Sommer, says it will be January before the new 41-story state Office Tower is opened. The state treasurer's office was supposed to have moved into the building later this month.

State Takes Over Insurance Firm

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Globe Assurance Co. was taken over by the state Insurance Department Friday in what was described as a "corrective step" to rectify the firm's financial situation. A complaint and motion to place Globe in conservatorship were filed in Franklin County Common Pleas Court. Insurance Director Kenneth E. DeShetler said that during the period of the conservatorship a moratorium will be placed on all cash policy loans and cash surrender applications requested by policyholders.

Hopalong Cassady Civil Suit Settled

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A civil suit filed by former Ohio State and pro football star Howard "Hopalong" Cassady has been settled out of court for a reported $11,500. Cassady filed a $1 million damage suit against two police officers he accused of beating him after a traffic mishap Sept. 29, 1972. The settlement must be approved by the City Council.

Prep Grid Teams Eye State Finals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Top-ranked Warren Western Reserve cruised by Bowling Green 30-0 in the state high school football playoffs Friday night to set up a Class AAA title game with Youngstown Mooney—a team it barely beat in regular season play.

Mooney, rated third in The Associated Press poll, advanced to the finals in the Akron Rubber Bowl next Friday night by easily defeating second-ranked Cincinnati Moeller 34-7.

In Class AA playoffs, No. 3 Ironton ousted second-rated Cincinnati Reading 7-0 and sixth-ranked Cleveland Benedictine blanked Lima Catholic 23-0.

The Class A semifinals saw Montpelier upsetting top-ranked Newark Catholic 19-8 and No. 7 Middletown Fenwick defeating tenth-ranked Ashtabula St. John 16-0.

Ironton will meet Benedictine in the Class AA title game at Massillon

Friday night, while Montpelier and Fenwick clash for the Class A championship at Ohio Wesleyan University Friday afternoon.

Western Reserve, the defending big school titlist, notched its 28th straight triumph in beating Bowling Green in the playoff game at Akron. The Raiders nipped Mooney 6-0 during the season, with the only score coming on a 70-yard fumble recovery.

The Warren team, now 11-0 for the season, jumped off to a 10-0 lead in the second quarter on a 37-yard field goal by Bill Williams and a touchdown dash by Marty Murray.

The Raiders added three more touchdowns in the third quarter on runs of 27 and 10 yards by Neal Hall and an 18-yard scamper by Willard Browner.

Bowling Green, meanwhile, never was able to mount a serious threat. It was unable to move the ball past its own 47-yard line.

Hurley Gains Teays Valley MVP Award

Bill Hurley was named most valuable player on the 1973 football squad at the Teays Valley fall sports banquet Friday night at the High school.

Hurley was singled out for his great defensive play at middle guard, 63 solo tackles and 48 assists, and his fine work as the strong side offensive guard.

This is the first time in the school's history that a junior has received the coveted MVP award.

Other grid awards presented at the banquet were: Steve Gray, outstanding lineman; Terry Lambert, outstanding back; and Lance Henson, senior achievement.

Winners of the Berserker award for defensive play were: Hurley, Gray, Henson, Lambert, Bob Weber, Bill Breon, Mike Reed and Keith Pettibone.

Hickerson Benched; Disciplinary Measure

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Cleveland Browns offensive guard Gene Hickerson will not start in Sunday's game against the Oakland Raiders as a disciplinary measure, the Browns said.

The Browns said Hickerson was being benched because he showed up two hours late for practice Friday.

Jim Copeland will start in place of Hickerson at left guard, the Browns said.

have not beaten the Baltimore Colts in their last nine meetings.

The New York Jets haven't lost to Cincinnati in their four meetings, but their only healthy quarterback is Bill Demory, a rookie.

The Kansas City Chiefs moved into a first place tie with Oakland in the AFC West Monday when they beat Chicago 19-7. This week they protect that tie in a game with Houston, which hasn't beaten the Chiefs since 1967.

The Detroit Lions still trail the Chicago Bears in their series, but Detroit has taken control in recent years, winning nine of their last 10 meetings.

The San Diego Chargers, who are making only their second start under new Coach Ron Waller, have won three of their last four outings with the New Orleans Saints.

Packer Coach Dan Devine and New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks have never met in NFL competition, but they were old Big 8 college opponents at Missouri and Oklahoma.

The St. Louis Cardinals found their only victory in the last seven games in their last match with the New York Giants three weeks ago when Jim Hart passed for four touchdowns. The Giants have lost seven in a row.

The Minnesota Vikings, who have clinched the NFC Central title, have won their first nine regular season games and face an Atlanta team that's won its last five.

Dolphins After Division Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Miami Dolphins will be out to clinch their third straight American Football Conference East title when they meet the Bills at Buffalo Sunday. Bills' running back O.J. Simpson will be out to see they don't.

Simpson's 20 carries for 99 yards last week against Cincinnati gave him 1,204 for the season, just shy of the 1,251 he collected last year.

In other National Football League pairings Sunday, Denver meets Pittsburgh, San Francisco is at Los Angeles, Cleveland faces the Raiders in Oakland, Philadelphia faces Dallas, Baltimore meets Washington, the New York jets are at Cincinnati, Houston plays at Kansas City, Detroit meets Chicago, New Orleans travels to San Diego, Green Bay's at New England, St. Louis meets the New York Giants, and Minnesota plays in Atlanta.

The Pittsburgh Steelers are protecting a 13-game winning streak at home in their AFC contest with the Denver Broncos.

The Los Angeles Rams are trying to protect a one-game lead over Atlanta's Falcons and have won their last six meetings with San Francisco.

Oakland will face a Cleveland Browns team that they've beaten twice already this year.

The Dallas Cowboys have regained a share of the National Football Conference's East lead since being beaten three weeks ago and won't want to give it up against Philadelphia.

Dallas shares that lead with the Washington Redskins, who must break a 14-year jinx to stay there. The 'Skins

King Storm Winner Of Latonia Feature

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP)—King Storm went wire-to-wire to claim the featured invitational trot Friday night at Latonia Race Course.

Timed in 2:04 2-5 for the mile, the 1¹/₄-length victory returned $3.60, $2.80 and $2.20.

Water Loo paid $5.40 and $4.40 for second. Chief Dean Showed at $2.40.

The Big Perfecta paid $11,812.50 on the 6-2 and 1-2 combination in the seventh and eighth races. It was the largest payoff of the fall meeting. One better claimed the winning ticket.

Coach Joe Paterno of Penn State often tells his football teams, "Do the little things right and the big things will take care of themselves."

Dolphins After Division Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Miami Dolphins will be out to clinch their third straight American Football Conference East title when they meet the Bills at Buffalo Sunday. Bills' running back O.J. Simpson will be out to see they don't.

Simpson's 20 carries for 99 yards last week against Cincinnati gave him 1,204 for the season, just shy of the 1,251 he collected last year.

In other National Football League pairings Sunday, Denver meets Pittsburgh, San Francisco is at Los Angeles, Cleveland faces the Raiders in Oakland, Philadelphia faces Dallas, Baltimore meets Washington, the New York jets are at Cincinnati, Houston plays at Kansas City, Detroit meets Chicago, New Orleans travels to San Diego, Green Bay's at New England, St. Louis meets the New York Giants, and Minnesota plays in Atlanta.

The Pittsburgh Steelers are protecting a 13-game winning streak at home in their AFC contest with the Denver Broncos.

The Los Angeles Rams are trying to protect a one-game lead over Atlanta's Falcons and have won their last six meetings with San Francisco.

Oakland will face a Cleveland Browns team that they've beaten twice already this year.

The Dallas Cowboys have regained a share of the National Football Conference's East lead since being beaten three weeks ago and won't want to give it up against Philadelphia.

Dallas shares that lead with the Washington Redskins, who must break a 14-year jinx to stay there. The Skins have not beaten the Baltimore Colts in their last nine meetings.

The New York Jets haven't lost to Cincinnati in their four meetings, but their only healthy quarterback is Bill Demory, a rookie.

The Kansas City Chiefs moved into a first place tie with Oakland in the AFC West Monday when they beat Chicago 19-7. This week they protect that tie in a game with Houston, which hasn't beaten the Chiefs since 1967.

The Detroit Lions still trail the Chicago Bears in their series, but Detroit has taken control in recent years, winning nine of their last 10 meetings.

The San Diego Chargers, who are making only their second start under new Coach Ron Waller, have won three of their last four outings with the New Orleans Saints.

Packer Coach Dan Devine and New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks have never met in NFL competition, but they were old Big 8 college opponents at Missouri and Oklahoma.

The St. Louis Cardinals found their only victory in the last seven games in their last match with the New York Giants three weeks ago when Jim Hart passed for four touchdowns. The Giants have lost seven in a row.

The Minnesota Vikings, who have clinched the NFC Central title, have won their first nine regular season games and face an Atlanta team that's won its last five.

Celts Stop Milwaukee

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Dave Cowens doesn't need any incentive to play against Milwaukee.

"He ignites himself when he sees them," says Boston
Celtic Coach Tom Heinsohn.
"He knows he has to have a good game for us to win."

Cowens was better than just good Friday night, scoring 26 points and grabbing 20 rebounds as the Celts stopped Milwaukee's 13-game winning streak with a 105-90 victory.

"Cowens just does the things he has to do," said
Heinsohn after watching his 6-foot-9 center take the play away from the 7-foot-2 Jabbar in the final period.

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Tom Watson had just taken his second consecutive five-over-par 76. He didn't make a birdie. His lead was shrinking rapidly. His dream of a record pay-off was fading.

So the red-haired young man had to work hard to find the cheerful aspect of the situation. But he did, and a smile broke through the gloom.

"Well, it's better to be two strokes in front than two behind," he said Friday.

Despite two rounds in which he has lost 10 strokes to par on the demanding 7,007-yard No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club, the 24-year-old Watson took a two-stroke advantage into today's last of eight rounds in the two-week $500,000 World Open Golf Tournament.

He had a seven-round total of 499, two-over-par. Just off his shoulder at 501 were veterans Bobby Mitchell and 42-year-old Miller Barber. Mitchell had a 70 and was the only one of the challengers to break par in the cool, breezy weather of the seventh round.

The balding Barber had 72. Rookie Ben Crenshaw, the 21-year-old sensation who won his first start as a full-fledged member of the tour only two weeks ago, was in threatening position at 502. He had a 73 that included a double bogey.

Astonishing Enrollment

LOCHIEL, Ariz. (AP) — Enrollment is up 100 per cent in the Lochiel Elementary School.

School officials reported six students attending the one-room schoolhouse, up from three a year ago.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1973

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE
from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you can utilize your time to advantage by studying various points of view and then apply them to your own life. Be alert to the best means by which you can operate in the future. Don't take any risks.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Ideal day to show your appreciation for those who have done favors for you in the past. Plan how to handle difficult tasks ahead.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take part in recreations with those you like and make this a most happy day. Showing more devotion to mate can bring greater rapport.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Spend some time putting home in better order and establishing more harmony there. Show others that you are an optimist.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Attend the services of your choice and talk with those who can assist you in elevating the level of your consciousness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Think of ways that could produce greater income in the days ahead. Go over your budget and make it stretch. Avoid unnecessary expenses.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take time to improve your state of health so that you will be at your best when you attend social affairs. Meet new personalities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Good day for attending to private affairs that will make your life run smoother. Plan time for meditation. Later accept invitation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Contact some good friends and get the answers to problems you have. Make a social visit and show that you are a good friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Getting into civic activities can produce fine results now. Bring your talents to the attention of some bigwig who can help.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Step out of a rut that has gotten you down and meet new personalities. Make plans for getting into new activity in the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Let your intuitive forces go to work for you and then you will know how to handle your affairs better. Show more enthusiasm.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day to meet quietly with associates and go over your joint projects. Come to a fine understanding with persons you respect.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful young people who is most conscientious and will enjoy working to make a success in life. Give as fine an education as you can afford. A brilliant career could start upon reaching maturity. Music could easily be the forte here. Give spiritual training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Polish Dancer Joins Ballet

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Ballet opens its gala 10th anniversary season with a new premier danseur, whose residency is made possible through a grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts.

He is Polish-born Woytek Lowski and he is the first dancer given permission by the present Polish minister of culture to perform with ballet companies outside Poland.

The first permission was granted in 1961, when Lowski trained and performed for two years with the Russian Kirov Ballet under Alexander Pushkin, Rudolf Nureyev's teacher. The second occasion was in 1966 when Maurice Bejart saw Lowski performing in Poland and invited him to join his company in Brussels. Lowski has also had two years with the Roland Petit Company in France. His American debut will be in Boston. He still holds a Polish passport.

Lowski's great-great-grandmother, Countess Skarbek Wiesiolowski, employed Frederic Chopin's father as tutor for her children and Frederic Chopin was born in her house.

Nixon Faces Public Questioning

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP)—In his first major public move since promising to meet Watergate charges head-on, President Nixon faces questioning tonight from the nation's editors before a nationwide television-radio audience.

All three commercial TV networks scheduled live broadcasts of Nixon's hour-long appearance, starting at 7 p.m. EST, at the convention of The Associated Press Managing Editors Association.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon would take questions on any subject from some 400 American and Canadian editors attending the conference at Disney World near Orlando, Fla. Watergate and related matters seemed certain to dominate the unusual news conference, but Ziegler expressed hope other subjects would be covered.

The White House barred questioning by Washington newsmen accompanying Nixon on a southern swing that will see the President make three public appearances in four days.

Since mounting a campaign to restore his shaken credibility and, as he phrased it, demonstrate "he has not violated his trust," Nixon has held a marathon series of private meetings with Republicans in Congress and with selected Southern Democrats.

The APME appearance will mark Nixon's first grappling in public with Watergate-related questions since his counteroffensive began.

Nixon, who flew to his home here Friday afternoon following a final session with House Republicans, was expected to arrive at the convention site for a staff meeting some 90 minutes before facing the editors. Mrs. Nixon, who is with him in Florida, was reported likely to remain in Key Biscayne and watch the proceedings on television.

In one of the White House meetings, Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., told Nixon Thursday night that he has lost his ability to lead the country. "Your weakness is credibility," Packwood said in comments released Friday.

There were these other Watergate developments:

—U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica came out in opposition to legislation calling for court appointment of a special Watergate prosecutor. Sirica set forth his views in a letter to Chairman James O. Eastland of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

—Sirica extended the deadline for delivery of subpoenaed White House Watergate tapes to allow time for technical experts to examine them. He said he will rule Dec. 3 on how much material will go to the grand jury.

—CIA officials denied any advance knowledge of the Watergate burglary. The allegation had been made in an article in Harper's Magazine.

Junior Class Premiers Ten Little Indians

"Ten Little Indians" by Agatha Christie premiered last night by the Circleville High School junior class. The second performance will be tonight at 8 p.m.

Eleven students were cast in the three act play revolving around a unique murderous situation. Ten people are stranded on a deserted island with help nowhere in sight as they mysteriously begin to die, one by one. Of major significance to the drama are the ten little indian boys on the mantel that mysteriously disappear as each of the inhabitants disappears.

The audience is held in suspense in the who-dones-it as each suspect dies and another comes into the suspicious limelight.

Excellent performances are executed by Jeff Swackhammer as the judge, Audrey May as the old maid and Dave Harman as the nerve doctor. Each of these characters show more than a little acting talent. Other cast members proving to the public that the local high school can deliver a truly entertaining night of theater were Jeff Spires, Kristi Rahe, Evelyn Howard, Leigh Hritz, Allen Dray, Mark McFadden, Steve Stocklen and Dwight Frazier.

Much can be said about high school productions. They give the prospective talent experience in both script and poise and involve more students than just those on the stage. Student staff groups headed the stage managers, light and sound crews, curtain, programs, set, publicity, make-up, handled the printing of the tickets and ushered the guests to their seats.

Directed by the drama teacher, Neal Handler, the class did a very good job with the play. The prospects are even better for tonight's performance.

Lighting and sound effects were delivered with practiced accuracy. Even the weather cooperated in the success of the production. The actors on stage were saying "It's so cold in here," and the audience was agreeing whole-heartedly. In keeping with the President's advise of fuel conservation, the heat was turned down, way down.

The school drama department has shown its talents in many forms over the past few years. They have delivered to the public amateur theateric productions keeping their audiences holding their sides with the hilarious comedy and holding their breaths with the latest playbill of tense drama.

Neal Handler is new to the drama department this year and from the looks of this first production, he is certainly going to continue the reputation of excellence for the school.

Ten Cases Finished By Juvenile Judge

The weekly docket for the Pickaway County Juvenile Court included cases involving two adults on charges of contributing to the unruliness of a minor and eight juveniles. Acting on behalf of the prosecution was the county prosecutor's office.

Michael Radabaugh, 159 Town St., received one year's probation on a contributing charge. Ptl. Hugh Black had filed the charges in which Judge Cline fined Radabaugh $100 and suspended $50 of the fine.

Cline suspended a sentence of one year in the Pickaway County Jail and ordered William Butcher, 507 S. Scioto St., to seek psychiatric treatment at the Scioto Valley Guidance Center on contributing charges. Sgt. Larry Pontious of the police department had filed the charges.

Richard L. Athey, 17, 317 Long St., Ashville, was fined $10 on a speeding charge. The court suspended the fine and suspended Athey's license for 30 days.

Leaving the scene of an accident was filed by the police department against Stephen Beckley, 16, 566 Garden Parkway. He received $50 fine with $25 suspended, had his license suspended for 60 days and was given permission to use his license for drivers' training and to drive to work.

State Highway Patrolman Everhart cited Marvin G. Mitchell, 17, Route 1, Ashville, for speed. Cline sentenced the youth with a suspended $10 fine and suspended his license for 30 days with permission to drive to school and work only.

A 16-year-old Circleville boy was placed in jail for shoplifting.

Charges of home truancy, school truancy and incorrigible behavior were filed against a 14-year-old Route 1, Williamsport girl. After vacating an order for the girl to be placed in the protectorship of the Division of Mental Retardation Protective Services, Judge Cline placed the girl in the temporary care of the Ohio Youth Commission.

Upon the request of the assistant prosecutor, James Kingsley, the court dismissed a charge of disorderly conduct against a 16-year-old Amanda girl. Three cases were also dismissed against a 17-year-old Ashville boy. The youth had been charged with operating a motor vehicle with fictitious license plates, no operator's license and disorderly conduct.

Ford Faces Same Snag As Saxbe

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A Constitutional technicality may hinder confirmation of Rep. Gerald Ford as vice president, an Ohio newspaper has reported.

The Dayton Daily News said in Friday editions that the Library of Congress has been asked to research a clause that prohibits members of Congress from taking executive positions if financial benefits of the office were increased during the Congressman's current term.

On Oct. 24, President Nixon signed into law a bill that increases the retirement benefits of several thousand federal employees, including the vice president, the newspaper said.

The News reported that William Heckman, majority counsel for the Senate Judiciary Committee, which is reviewing the nomination, said he asked the congressional library for an advisory opinion on the matter.

The Constitutional question also is being studied in relation to the nomination of Sen. William Saxbe, R-Ohio, as attorney general.

Saxbe was a member of the Senate at the same time Congress raised the attorney general's salary.

Company signs at the 100 stores in Kroger's Cincinnati-Dayton Division will be turned off when the stores close.

The audience is held in suspense in the who-done-it as each suspect dies and another comes into the suspicious limelight.

Excellent performances are executed by Jeff Swackhammer as the judge, Audrey May as the old maid and Dave Harman as the nerve doctor. Each of these characters show more than a little acting talent. Other cast members proving to the public that the local high school can deliver a truly entertaining night of theater were Jeff Spires, Kristi Rahe, Evelyn Howard, Leigh Hritz, Allen Dray, Mark McFadden, Steve Stocklen and Dwight Fraizer.

Much can be said about high school productions. They give the prospective talent experience in both script and poise and involve more students than just those on the stage. Student staff groups headed the stage managers, light and sound crews, curtain, programs, set, publicity, make-up, handled the printing of the tickets and ushered the guests to their seats.

Directed by the drama teacher, Neal Handler, the class did a very good job with the play. The prospects are even better for tonight's performance.

Lighting and sound effects were delivered with practiced accuracy. Even the weather cooperated in the success of the production. The actors on stage were saying "It's so cold in here," and the audience was agreeing wholeheartedly. In keeping with the President's advise of fuel conservation, the heat was turned down, way down.

The school drama department has shown its talents in many forms over the past few years. They have delivered to the public amateur theatriac productions keeping their audiences holding their sides with the hilarious comedy and holding their breaths with the latest playbill of tense drama.

Neal Handler is new to the drama department this year and from the looks of this first production, he is certainly going to continue the reputation of excellence for the school.

Ford Faces Same Snag As Saxbe

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A Constitutional technicality may hinder confirmation of Rep. Gerald Ford as vice president, an Ohio newspaper has reported.

The Dayton Daily News said in Friday editions that the Library of Congress has been asked to research a clause that prohibits members of Congress from taking executive positions if financial benefits of the office were increased during the Congressman's current term.

On Oct. 24, President Nixon signed into law a bill that increases the retirement benefits of several thousand federal employees, including the vice president, the newspaper said.

The News reported that William Heckman, majority counsel for the Senate Judiciary Committee, which is reviewing the nomination, said he asked the congressional library for an advisory opinion on the matter.

The Constitutional question also is being studied in relation to the nomination of Sen. William Saxbe, R-Ohio, as attorney general.

Saxbe was a member of the Senate at the same time Congress raised the attorney general's salary.
